Right out of the gate, Sutro's music was highly anticipated. Before even putting out their first release, a demo version of their track "Temptress" was snatched up for use on the first Destination Lounge San Francisco compilation by Revive the Soul. Shortly after, Sutro released their debut EP, How Things Transpire, which was mixed by none other than Grammy nominated Joe Chiccarelli (The Shins, Beck, The White Stripes, Lamb). That EP was hailed as "sexy, liquid, cinematic soul that just happens to have enormous commercial potential" (XLR8R Magazine). Sutro went on to license three of the four tracks on the EP on several compilations such as SF Essentials, Destination Lounge San Francisco 2, Digital Bliss, and the NARAS (Grammy) sponsored Test Press collection, positioning themselves as one of the premier downtempo acts of SF and the west coast.

This Fall, Sutro releases their third EP, Temptress: Remixed. An eclectic crew of DJs and producers - including Frost-RAVEN, SNAX, J. Rogers and Sutro's own Tyler Stone - deliver a host of delicious mixes from thick as molasses down-tempo to nasty, sweaty dance floor grinds. Temptress: Remixed follows RE:lected - the Affected Remixes met with critical acclaim. XLR8R dubbed Tyler's broken mix "home grown goodness - a very nice busted mix" while iTunes gave it features in new releases, electronic, and an indie spot light. There was no shortage of talent with mixes by Grammy nominated Chris Lum, Quannum Projects artist Tony Sevens of Honeycut, breaks guru DJ F, and Sutro's own Tyler Stone.

Sutro, led by renowned Producer/Remixer Tyler Stone, along with Patrick Hinds and Keenan Wayne - "...manage to balance cool, piercing beats, torch piano, sludgy synths and jazzy turns [that] set the stakes in [a] rapturous act" (download.com). Sutro have been embraced by broadcast and internet radio stations SOMA FM, 92.7 (Below Zero), KZSU (#2 Electronica, #17 Top 30), KSCU and Groovera.com. Globally, podcasts Giant Step, Tom Thump's "The Enthusiast's Hour," Dave's Lounge, Well Made Music (UK) and Electrical Lounge (UK) have featured Sutro's music. As the word spreads, "dance music's mellower, more sophisticated cousin" (Bill Picture, Popbeat, SF Chronicle) is becoming de rigueur for those in the know.

"...If I could walk into an airport bar and hear Sutro playing, I just might start flying more often! Basically, this band is what Sade listens to backstage at her own concerts - sexy, liquid, cinematic soul that just happens to have enormous commercial potential."

"There's a wonderful mood... a very haunting quality to all these songs. It's the perfect combination..."

- Joe Chiccarelli
Grammy winning engineer

"A strong sonic palette - it manages to balance cool, piercing beats, torch piano, sludgy synths and jazzy turns - sets the stakes in Sutro's rapturous act. It's like a red-blooded heir to more wan trip-hop times, with the lush, airy vocals of Britain's best the only true holdover."
